

Data Protection Training

This intensive comprehensive 6-day course presented by experienced data protection professionals will provide current or aspiring data protection officers with everything that they need to know about UK data protection laws. This detailed, interactive and engaging course provides an in-depth look at data protection and privacy rights legislation which concludes with a 3 hour open-book exam.

COURSE OVERVIEW

This Level 3 certified course will give Learners a detailed understanding of the UK's data protection legislation including the UK GDPR and the Data Protection Act 2018, and where applicable our international obligations in other territories. This course will provide Data Protection and Compliance Officers with comprehensive training to ensure that their organisation is able to comply with their legal data protection obligations. It will also assist them in devising an effective strategy to prevent breaches of these laws.

This Level 3 course is overseen by Hand In Hand Professionals, who independently set and administer the course exam. Learners who complete this course and successfully pass the exam, will receive a Hand In Hand Level 3 Data Protection Practitioners Certificate.

FORMAT AND CERTIFICATION

The course will take place over six weeks, with 3 initial onsite days, 4 - 5 weeks interlude for self-directed study and a further 3 onsite days with the exam on the final day.

The first three days will consist of trainer-led instruction covering legislation, legal theory and application.

This is followed by 4 - 5 weeks of self-directed study, individual revision with remote support from Griffin House, plus online quizzes and mock exam questions.

Learners will then return for 3 more days of face-to-face tuition and practical elements such as performing impact assessments, managing personal data breaches and navigating complex subject access requests. The final day concludes with a written open-book exam that consists of multiple-choice questions, short answers and essays.

Courses are usually held in a four or five star hotel with residential full-board options available for Learners.

AUDIENCE

Data protection legislation states that Data Protection Officers must have 'expert knowledge' of the subject, this course is intended to ensure that existing, new or aspiring Data Protection or Compliance Officers meet this standard and legal obligation. This course will provide all the necessary training and tools Learners will need to fulfil this role within their organisation.
